semi private sanctuary

Chalet is designed by David Fox, and supports the way we work in the changing workspace. High backed sofas are a great way of breaking up a corporate space, but what if you wanted something a little more personal or flexible. Chalet acts like a semi private shell in which the user can make their own interior by placing in there sofas, meeting chairs and tables or more comfortable lounge chairs.

privacy
level

As one of deberenn's first ideas, the design approach of Versis was seen as a conceptual relaxing and privacy zone in an open space. The two different heights let you choose your privacy level. You can be hidden while you rest your hands on the armrest of our sofa. Isolate yourself, be in and out of the lounge, and divide the space.

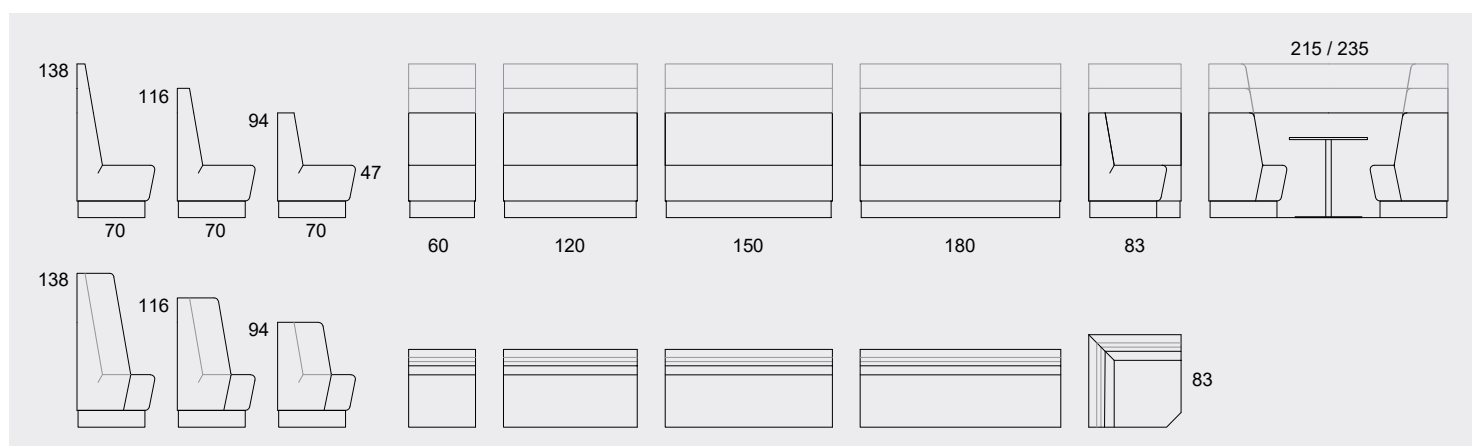

The inner space of the sofa helps travellers who always need meetings in public settings. The concept of Versis allows different combinations of upholstery and colour schemes in the same sofa. This privacy promising sofa welcomes you with medium and high versions and is a key piece for restaurants or office environment.

endless configurations
